Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale Promotes Comprehensive Aging in Place Resource

Leading provider of in-home care, Home Care Assistance, has collaborated with the Alzheimer's Association, Village to Village Network, and other senior care experts to publish a magazine to educate families and their aging loved ones on how to live happier, healthier lives at home

(Fort Lauderdale, FL—January 26, 2017) Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale, the area's leading agency for in-home senior care, is proud to promote the release of their magazine, Aging in Place, a 48-page publication that includes expert advice from organizations like the Alzheimer's Association, Village to Village Network, and Home Care Assistance's own senior care specialists. This comprehensive resource includes advice for living well at home, preventing caregiver "burnout," hospital to home care tips, and many other issues affecting families and seniors who are aging in-home. This publication has received an overwhelming response from senior care professionals and families alike, and is something that everyone should have in their library to help a loved one or patient navigate the aging process.

"At Home Care Assistance we strive to be the go-to community resource for families and seniors who are exploring the plethora of care options available to them," said Manpreet Dhalla, Owner/President of Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale. "Whether we get the opportunity to directly serve and help a family or we have the opportunity to be a trusted resource, we want to make sure that they have all the information needed to make the best decision for their aging loved one's care needs. Aging in Place is a great resource that enables families to navigate various issues and make smart choices about long-term care."

Ninety percent of seniors prefer to age at home; The Aging in Place magazine gives older adults and their family members access to valuable information and expertise about how to live a happy, healthy life at home.
