Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale Launches New Caregiver Training Program with the Institute for Professional Care Education®

Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale has chosen the Institute for Professional Care Education (IPCed®) to provide online caregiver training and compliance to all their employees

(Fort Lauderdale, FL – August 2, 2016) Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale, the premier provider of in-home care for seniors, is always striving to improve its quality of care and offer unique benefits to its employees. They have thus partnered with the Institute for Professional Care Education to provide continual training programs for free to caregivers and office staff. Home Care Assistance's employees now have access to the IPCed online caregiver/office training as well as IPCed's award-winning Medifecta series of DVD-based caregiver trainings.

"We want to make sure our caregivers are trained and have the skills to best serve our clients," said Manpreet Dhalla Owner/President of Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale. "By partnering with IPCed to offer courses, we can continually ensure that our caregivers are equipped to work with a wide variety of client circumstances. We hire caregivers who are already trained and have great experience; however, now we are able to further their skills through courses ranging from Alzheimer's/Dementia Care to Back Safe to Kosher Care."

The Institute for Professional Care Education is a recognized leader in high-quality training for senior care professionals. By choosing IPCed as its training partner, Home Care Assistance of Ft. Lauderdale is further demonstrating their commitment to high quality, high-touch care.
